Concepts of Technique 36 Register studies for Bass Clef Euphonium Pedagogical concepts: Dennis AsKew Music composed by: Eddie Bass INTRODUCTION This book is built on the acceptance of two basic principles, muscle memory and the concept of delineation. This book will not deal with the mechanics and descriptions of how to make a good sound, it is merely designed to help the player work on the other components of technique. These etudes are not designed to be an be all, end all for practice. They are to be used as a part of a complete practice regime which should include a daily routine, style etudes, and performance materials. These etudes would most likely fall into someones daily routine. These etudes and the accompanying philosophy surrounding them have been the basis for the development of technique in my studio, and I hope you can use them as well. -- The exercises along with the written material makes this book a great teaching (and practice) package. Michael Moore (Atlanta Symphony) - I have long been convinced that we need more study materials for euphonium and tuba (and, to be truthful, all instruments) that include specific information to guide students of all ages and levels toward the goals of mastering the technical aspects of playing the instruments, as well as directing them toward the end goal for all musicians, amateur or professional, which is good music making. The numbers and availability of professional artistteachers of the euphonium and tuba are limited, and in some areas of the world one must travel hundreds of miles to find such an individual for study. Dr. Dennis AsKew has provided both clear instruction and etudes...
