The developing of the intellect is not sufficient; most of the evil comes into the world thru perverting the feelings and appetites. Horace Mann saw the need of a more effective moral training when he said, fifty years ago: When I look back to the playmates of my childhood; when I remember the acquaintance which I formed with nine college classes; when I cast my eye over the circles of men with whom professional and public duties made me conversant, I find amongst all these examples, that for one man who has been ruined for want of intellect or attainment, hundreds have perished for want of morals. And yet, with this disproportion between the cause of human ruin, we go on, bestowing at least a hundred times more care and pain and cost in the education of the intellect than...
